Transient Receptor Potential Vanilloid 1 and Uses thereof

Inventors: Pankaj J. Pasricha; John H. Winston

Description:
The present invention describes methods of retarding the development of visceral and somatic hypersensitivities in an individual. Further, the present invention describes a potentially important role for the transient receptor potential vanilloid 1 (TRPV1) in initiation and maintenance of the chronic visceral hypersensitivity and its role in development of irritable bowel syndrome.

Contact:
Sundeep Mattamana, Ph.D.
Associate Director
Office of Technology Transfer
(409) 772-0374
sumattam@utmb.edu